"Biocom's commitment to helping our local service members transition into a career in the life sciences industry is commendable and I am honored to be a part of this terrific event for a second year."

— Richard Pascoe, Veteran and CEO at Apricus Biosciences

Ranked as one of the top regions in the nation for life sciences, San Diego is an optimal place to begin your next career. Join our second annual half-day Life Science Career Exploration for Veterans to learn more about this vibrant industry.

This half-day symposium is open to veterans of all stages of transition with interest in exploring career opportunities in the life science sector. Attendees will hear from top executives in the industry speaking on the variety of jobs in this thriving sector and the ways their own companies are seeking and utilizing key skills veterans have. HR professionals from leading companies will speak to the benefits of hiring veterans and share advice for successfully navigating the transition into this industry. This is a free event for active duty military, military veterans, and Military Spouses.
